From the Principal's Desk

Sad to report that we are going back into a 'lock-down', commencing at 11:59 pm tonight. Hopefully it doesn't last the full seven days, but we have to be prepared for that to occur. A more comprehensive statement of the expectations regarding your child's learning will be posted on our Facebook page and School Stream app later today, as soon as I have all the details.

EDUCATION WEEK

This week we celebrated Education Week at Strathmerton Primary with two special events to focus on the fact that 'State Schools are Great Schools.' It was really gratifying to see a sizeable number of parents, carers and family members support our open classrooms session on Monday morning, enjoying the opportunity of seeing the students at their lessons. Then, again on Wednesday evening, it was great to see so many family groups join in for our Family Maths Night. Thanks to staff for organising the Maths activities.

BOOK FAIR

The Book Fair set up in the library was a wonderful success, with many families and friends taking the opportunity to purchase the latest children's books to give to their children as presents. I can never say enough times that children who are regular readers perform much better at school, than those students 'who haven't caught the reading bug'. When you give your child a book as a present it reinforces to them that you value the importance of reading and that reading is an enjoyable pastime.

PUPIL REPORTS

Teachers are currently in the process of evaluating each student's performance in all the subjects at school and are beginning the process of writing up a pupil report for every student. These reports are very comprehensive and provide a detailed summary, of not only their academic performance, but also their behaviour and effort in this first semester. The reports will go home on the Monday of the last week of term (21/06). Then on the Thursday afternoon/evening and the Friday morning of this last week, teachers will conduct interviews for all parents/carers. Leanne will send out a booking form in the next few weeks, so that you can choose a day and time for your child/ren's interview.
