Thank you for your continued support for the Bailey Avenue Bus Rapid Transit (BRT) Project

We are excited to share that the Bailey Ave BRT project continues to advance, with construction of the first BRT station at University Station expected to begin this Fall. NFTA will provide the construction start date, anticipated timeline, and information about any temporary impacts to Route 19 service as those details are finalized.

The Bailey Ave BRT project team is continuing design for the remaining BRT stations and corridor improvements, including intersection upgrades, sidewalks, and traffic signal enhancements. Construction along the remainder of the corridor is set to begin in Spring 2027.

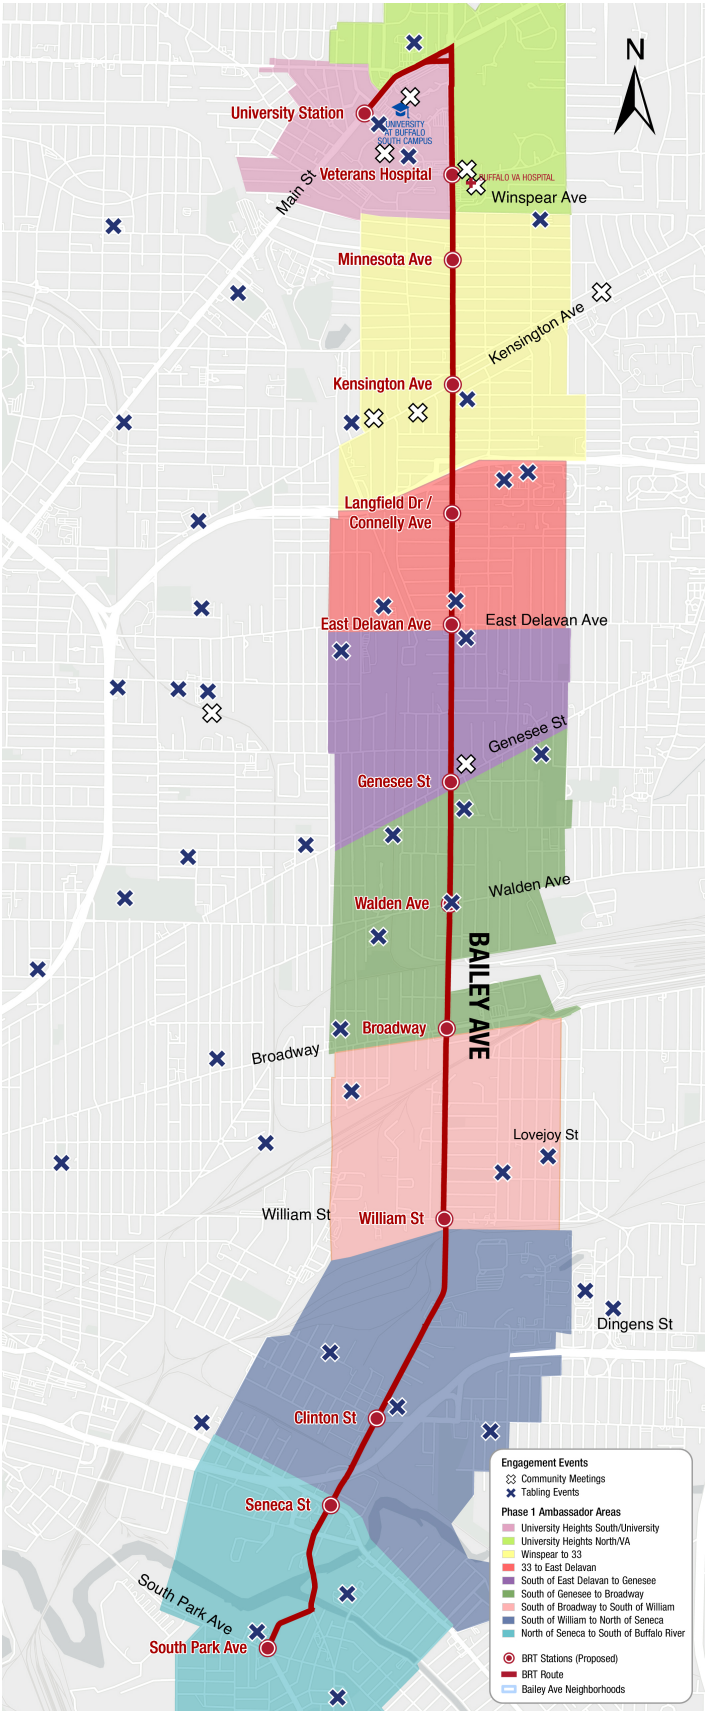

Bailey Ave BRT Community Ambassadors have visited over 180 businesses, institutions, and organizations along the corridor and attended numerous community events this summer, including the Delavan-Grider Farmers' Market, Masten Rooted in the Park Farmers' Market, MAP Mobile Farmer's Market, Juneteenth Festival, and Puerto Rican & Hispanic Day Festival. NFTA also provided project updates to block clubs and community groups along the Bailey Ave corridor. To date, the project team has engaged with over 4,500 community members. Community feedback from engagement has shaped updates to the FAQ section of the project website.

NFTA continues to collaborate with the City of Buffalo on related planning initiatives along the Bailey Ave corridor, including the City's Build Back Bailey project and NFTA's Equitable Transit-Oriented Development (ETOD) study. The City of Buffalo plans to begin Phase One of Build Back Bailey in 2027 between Winspear Ave and Kensington Ave, with additional phases planned. Over the summer, the NFTA ETOD project team conducted outreach at Buffalo Central Terminal, the Clinton Bailey Farmers & Flea Market, and the Delavan-Grider Community Center to gather community input on future development opportunities and investments along the Bailey Ave corridor.

We encourage you to stay involved by visiting the Bailey Ave BRT website, where you can find project information and engagement opportunities.

Let us know if you would like NFTA staff to attend your next event or present to your organization!
